For public necessity to be established the applicant must exhibit the ability to do the proposal they are suggesting. Great Lakes basin railroad could not even complete a routine construction application correctly, how are they going to operate a rail line? We do not need a company that left off one of the counties it intends to operate in from it's application. What are they going to leave off when it actually comes time to run a railroad? What other shortcuts and half-truths are they going to issue. It is time to end the review of this project and issue an immediate no build ruling.
