Dear Ms. Johnson-Ball,

We again thank you and the STB for keeping everyone in the area affected by the proposed CN acquisition of the EJ&E informed about the review process. As Frankfort residents whose across-the-street neighbors back up to the tracks, we would again like to voice our opposition to the sale which will quadruple the number of trains rumbling through our neighborhood.

In addition to the safety and environmental concerns I expressed in a letter last January (see attached), we are now worried about the extravagant costs that we local taxpayers will potentially have to bear to pay for the mitigation recommended in the DEIS. The Illinois state budget has no provisions to pay for the improvements that the added rail traffic will require. Also, unless the mitigation issues are put in place and construction of the grade separations, etc. are completed before any additional train traffic is approved, who will insure that this mitigation does happen?

The arrogant attitude that Canadian National has displayed in their various press conferences and releases as they try to "railroad" this deal through, does not give us any confidence that they will give any consideration to the communities that they will affect so adversely. Our quality of life in the community that we chose to live in will be drastically affected from the standpoint of safety, the environment and the value of our homes if this transaction goes through. Multiply our situation by the other 79 communities along the route and please deny approval of the sale.

Thank you for consideration.

Sincerely,

Re: CN Acquisition of E&J Railroad
Date: January 15, 2007

Dear Members of the Surface Transportation Board,

Thank you for giving the residents of Frankfort and other affected communities the opportunity to express our grave concerns about the potential sale of the E&J Railroad to Canadian National and the impact it could have.

I reside on Aberdeen Road in Frankfort, a dead end street which is over a mile and a half long and whose only outlet is on to Harlem Avenue. Aberdeen is located approximately one half block north of the E&J tracks and runs along the tracks for its length. There are over 125 households on Aberdeen including those on several small cul-de-sacs. At present it is difficult to get out of the neighborhood due to increased traffic in recent years and this is compounded each time a train backs up traffic on Harlem Avenue. I cannot imagine what the impact will be if the number of trains coming through is quadrupled (from approximately 6-8 trains a day to a potential 28).

In addition to the increased number of trains, the fact that Harlem Avenue is slated to be expanded from the current two lanes to a divided four lane thoroughfare is a major factor in opposing the sale. Construction is slated to begin with new signals at Laraway Road and Sauk Trail in mid 2008 and will continue with expansion of the road between Sauk Trail and Lincoln Highway (including the portion that intersects Aberdeen Road) in 2009 and 2010. The final phase, south of Sauk Trail will occur in 2010 and 2011. The traffic will not be impeded between Lincoln Highway and Sauk Trail, except by the passing trains. We in the neighborhood will still be expected to try to work our way into or across four lanes of traffic, which could possibly have been backed up for several minutes. During construction and after, this will be a nightmare.

All of schools in our elementary district (Illinois 157C) are within blocks of the E&J tracks as are many places of business and worship. Crossing the tracks to get from one point to another once you leave our street is a given. Also, because of the way Sauk Trail and the tracks run, you have to cross the tracks twice to get to downtown Frankfort from our neighborhood via Sauk Trail. The potential road blockages and the congestion, not to mention the exhaust from the waiting cars will be an environmental disaster for our area. Please consider the scenario from our street and multiply it a thousand times by all the other areas that will be adversely impacted by this potential acquisition by Canadian National and make your recommendations accordingly.

Sincerely,

(FYI – I have heard two sets of train horns blaring as I write.)
