Hello, I am the widow of a farmer that bought land along the proposed route of the GLBT rail line. Nobody here wants to have a rail line and a toll road bisect the land that we make our living from. They believe they can buy our land, the land we rely on as my pension, at what they call fair market value so their unknown investors can make profits. Since when can private investors use eminent domain to force other private citizens to sell their land? Nobody will want to buy my land that is separated by a railroad and toll way that isn't needed in the first place. This is a horrible idea and it should be stopped. Thank You, Debbie Isham
