The Camino Real Bridge in Piedras Negras has worsened air quality in the corridor through Piedras Negras to the point that a senior center had to be moved and a school was closed. I worry that the new bridge would lower air quality for the EP residents.

Bridge closures / Wait times are due to redeployment of DHS personnel, not traffic

According to the map more of the queue before security is in the US, not Mexico as compared to the Camino Real Bridge, so we might expect more pollution due to the proposed route & building location
