GLBT application

The GLBT application for the proposed railroad has some serious issues for those who's land will be impacted. First, the business plan is so deficient in financial data and source of funds by individual investors as to be laughable. No major company would accept a business plan as was submitted by the GLBT company. What happens if the railroad is approved and construction is halted due to lack of funds and those unidentified investors back out? Where are the rail companies that might pay to use the rail system. None at this point have been identified.

My husbands ancestors had their property taken by a railroad, no payment made, and when it ceased using the rails, he had to buy it back.
