To Whom it May Concern:

My rail expert at work tells me that the only parties that will benefit from this acquisition are the CN rail company and US Steel. All other interested parties will suffer. Traffic & congestion in communities along this rail line will significantly increase. Property values of homeowners will significantly decrease. Rail service for industry along this line will not improve. I am told that the CN is North America's worst railroad company. One state to our North, CN came in took over rail lines and business there has never been the same. My company's paper mills in central Wisconsin is just one of many businesses to be terribly disappointed by poor service.

I have been further warned that CN will say what it needs to say now, and do whatever it pleases after it gets this line. So the estimated number of freight trains running along these tracks could be far worse than what is currently being discussed.

Thanks for your consideration
